PRESS RELEASE: Motofix Group equips seven of their eight sites with state of the art Wheel Alignment and ADAS technology.

The Motofix Group are pleased to announce that seven Motofix Accident Repair Centres sites have been equipped with state of the art Pro-Align Hunter 4 Wheel Alignment and VAS6430 ADAS (Advanced Driver Assistance) technology, as approved by the VWG Group.

The new solution, supplied and fitted by Pro-Align, means that selected Motofix sites are now able to deliver state of the art geometry alignment and ADAS set-up – ensuring optimal safety, performance and accuracy of safety critical equipment just as the manufacturer intended.

Pro-Align Business Development Manager, Greg Thompson, confirmed “ADAS is becoming more and more familiar on today’s vehicles as the manufacturers aim to make their vehicles safer on our roads. We are proud to be associated with Motofix and to have been able to equip their workshops with the manufacturer approved Hunter Wheel alignment equipment and ADAS calibration products, as well offering IMI certified training to their alignment technicians.”

The investment was made due to Motofix’s recognition that the use of intelligent driving systems; including lane departure warnings, adaptive cruise control and automatic braking are becoming increasingly popular. These systems all require the vehicle’s wheels to be in correct alignment, so that the ADAS equipment can be calibrated correctly. The choice to adopt this equipment was also powered by customer demand, a changing marketplace and the need to reduce key 2 key times.

Richard Tutt, Executive Chairman, commented “We’re delighted to be able to offer this new service to our customers. This is a significant investment for the Group that demonstrates our continued commitment to expanding our service offering and future proof the business.”
